"This prestigious group of women was selected out of hundreds of impressive nominations based on their strong business acumen, community involvement, advocacy for women and their ability to both influence and inspire within their respective industries," according to LWE founder and CEO Linda Wellbrock. "They are amazing role models representative of the increasing impact women are making in the world of business," added Wellbrock.

Dennis W. Doll, Middlesex President & CEO, commented, "We're proud of Bernadette for all her accomplishments and for the leadership she provides both within and outside our company. We're grateful that LWE has also recognized the value of her contributions."

Sohler oversees the planning, development and implementation of Middlesex Water's strategic corporate communications and digital communications initiatives, crisis management, public relations and customer education activities; investor relations, government affairs and corporate social responsibility efforts. Within Middlesex she is focused on driving a culture of transparency which aligns and engages employees through consistent communication and community service. Externally, she has enhanced utility communications outreach through proactive public education which helps citizens understand the value of water and the need for ongoing infrastructure investment. She is an active participant on industry committees and serves on the board of directors of several chambers of commerce and social service organizations.
